"THAT BUGLE-CALL."

He was a stern and proud old man,
With a courtly air and grace,
And it was his boast that he never forgot
A once-known name or face.

A soldier every inch of him,
And he had a goodly store
Of stories of "When I was serving, sir,
With Scott, in the Mexican War."

A popular dinner-out was he;
And once, as it befell,
Old comrades met to dine
In state at the town's hotel.

The dinner was good, and the wine was good;
His stories raised a shout;
When suddenly, under the balcony,
A bugle-call rang out.

Once, twice, and thrice on the evening air
Its soul-thrilling notes were borne,
And the Major asked, with a frowning face,
"Who's tooting that old stage-horn?"

"What stage-horn ever heard this time of night?"
Then a comrade sadly said;
"Why, Major! It's old Buck Blowaway,
The fellow we thought was dead!"

No light came into the Major's face;
He tried to raise a smile,
As he said—with his usual courtly grace—
"I—don't recall his style!"

A murmur rose from the crowd outside;
Said the comrade then, "Oh—well!
That's the very 'To Boot and Saddle,' he played
The day Corio Gordo fell!"

The Major sprang to the balcony,
The crowd gave a mighty shout;
The fire of youth was in his eye,
And his words rolled grandly out.

"My friends! when I heard that bugle-call,
After all those many years,
It waked an echo of memory,
Which thrilled my old heart! [Cheers.]

"Afar in the pathless wilderness,
Where the weary traveler sees
His way by the stars, had I heard that note,
'Twould have waked that echo! [Cheers.]

"It has rung as we marched to victory,
It has raised us above all fears;
It has never sounded 'Retreat,' my friends—
Old Buck couldn't learn that! [Cheers.]

"Not another man in the world could call
To these dry old eyes the tears
As old Buck has done with his bugle-blast!"
[Tremendous deafening cheers!]

"The Pinch of the Fight."

PICKETT'S CHARGE AT GETTYSBURG,

AS SEEN BY A UNION SOLDIER.

The following, written by R. Stuart Latrobe, a Union Soldier in the fight, and published in the Baltimore American in August, 1863, strikes us as a fitting continuation of the several interesting Battle History articles that have from time to time appeared in the COMPILER. The description of the ground will be recognized as unusually accurate to have been made by a stranger, and he gives what he saw of Pickett's Charge in very readable style. After an introduction to his letter, not necessary here, the writer says:

How Watch Cases are Made.

A plate of SOLID GOLD 14 2-10 karat fine is soldered on each side of a plate of hard nickel composition metal, and the three are then passed between polished steel rollers. From this plate the various parts of the cases—backs, centers, bezels, etc. are cut and shaped by dies and formers. The gold is thick enough to admit of all kinds of chasing, engraving, and engine-turning. The composition metal gives it needed strength, stiffness and solidity, while the written guarantee of the manufacturers warranting each case to wear twenty years proves that it contains all the gold that can possibly be needed. This guarantee is given from actual results, as many of these cases have been worn perfectly smooth by years of use without wearing through the gold.

DUNDUFF, IA., Dec. 11, 1880.

I have used one of your James Boss' Gold Watch Cases for seventeen years. I bought it second-hand and know of its having been used before I got it, but do not know how long. It looks good for ten years longer. Did not suspect it was a filled case until so informed by a jeweler a short time since. I most cheerfully recommend your cases to be all they are represented to be, and more.

EX-SHERIFF HERSH'S Registered and Celebrated Trotting Stallion, "ALLENTONIAN," No. 1161, can be found at Meadow Valley Farm, two miles north of Gettysburg, for the fall season. July 22, 6w

Now, that you have my theatre of observation, let me come to what took place on it. The morning of the 3d passed quietly. We had heard, as a camp rumor, that Meade had said, that, "if Lee could afford to wait so could he;" and we fancied that the waiting had begun, when, about one o'clock on Friday, a single gun on the opposite side of the valley went "bang," and there was the whirr of a shot. Presently another "bang," and then, "bang, bang, bang, bang, bang," until it was impossible to count the shots; and along with these reports came every kind of hurtle, whirr, whistle and shriek, that man has heard or can imagine, the most terrific of all proceeding from some elongated missile, which causing to revolve around its axis, dashed "promiscuously" through the air, becoming visible in such event. The 12-pound shot were also to be seen as they came; and the worst of it was, that every shot seemed to be coming straight to hit you between the eyes. Horses were the greatest sufferers here; for the men laid down and escaped; but the poor brutes had to take it standing. General Gibbon had sent two regiments to the brick house on the Emmitsburg road, from which we inferred that he expected an attack in that direction. Although Generals don't stop to tell the soldiers what they are doing this or that for, yet now and then one catches a word, when one happens to be near by, and picks up a hint, if the infernal rumpage allows time for thought. So, when General Gibbon was heard to say to an aide, "Tell General Meade that the enemy is advancing his infantry in force upon my front," and the aide was seen to put spurs to his horse and go off in a full gallop, we began to brace up for what was coming. By this time, after an hour and a half of such firing as I have described, we could see, from where we stood, the enemy moving up in three lines from out of the woods. They would come out, marching by a flank, till they reached the desired ground, when they would face to the front. Their second line was about a hundred yards in the rear of the first, and on the edge of the woods, across the valley, was a third line. It was a splendid sight to see them. No one looked at their uniforms or no uniforms, their hats, or caps, or bare heads. Everybody looked at the beautiful way in which they arrayed themselves in order of attack, regardless of the shot and shell which we threw into their ranks. The soldiers on our side again and again praised it, while they awaited the approach of the enemy. Nor did they wait long. When they approached to within about two hundred yards, a part of our division, I think it was Hall's brigade, opened fire, and we could see men fall, and others go to the rear. Still on they came, crowding a little in front but steady as rocks. Just then an officer rode by, and said the Vermont regiment on the left was worrying the enemy. But they did not mind that either; on they came. When they got within a hundred yards, more of our regiments opened fired; but it did not stop them. Some regiments reserved their fire until they got within fifty yards, and then the enemy fell fast; but still, on they came, and we could see their faces and hear their officers. It was almost too much for human nature to stand, and a portion of the second brigade, which was behind the stone fence, you will recollect, began to leave cover—not because the enemy was upon it, but because it seemed impossible to stay. Not a man ran, or seemed to feel like running, but they fell back slowly, loading as they did so, and firing, while the flags of the enemy—which are small red affairs with a white cross diagonal on them—got up to the stone wall, and some crossed the line of rail fence, so that the division was bent backward as it were, in the centre, the ends on the right and left standing fast; at least, so it seemed, for there was a great deal of smoke and a terrific noise to confuse one's power of calm observation.

This was the pinch, and the officers knew it. General Gibbon had just been hit, some one said, and almost at the same time General Hancock was badly wounded, and both were taken off the field to the rear. But I recollect seeing Gibbon's aide try to rally the men, and do it manfully too. He did a man's part in steadying the line. So did Webb, who was on foot in the midst of the men. Entreaty, command, expostulation, encouragement, were employed. Webb was everywhere. So was Colonel Smith, of a Pennsylvania regiment. At this time the enemy were crowding over the stone fence near the clump of trees, and their red flags were waving, as it seemed to me, in triumph already; though Hall was all right and his men were steady on our left. Presently, some one near me said, that the enemy were massing their men in front of Webb, opposite the clump of trees, and we began to wish for Hall's help. By this time, the officers had stopped the falling back and were driving stragglers to the front, though we did not go forward to the stone wall, yet; but all were facing the enemy and firing heavily—not in ranks, for every one seemed going it pretty much on his own hook—but cheerfully, which was a good sign. We had wished for Hall, so he came as wished, and his right marched by a flank to our left and got mixed with our men. As the 3d brigade, (Hall's,) came up by the flank, there was a disposition, under the heavy fire to which it was exposed, to edge away from the stone wall; but the officers overcame this, and soon a compact body of men was formed, who delivered a heavy and well directed fire upon the enemy as they came over the wall and rail fence towards us. Just then an officer, Gibbon's aide—I think it was the same who had gone for Hall—came over with some regiments from the 1st brigade (Harrow's) on our left, and from him it was reported that the extreme right of the enemy, opposite to our left, was breaking badly, and that men there were running to the rear. This greatly encouraged us, and we cheered and went to our work with a will. At this time, we were behind the crest, which was between us and the stone wall, which was a little way down the hill towards the valley; and at the wall, between fifty and sixty yards from us, were the enemy, many of them over the wall. We now advanced, and could see, as we did so, that the battle was raging in front of the third division. We delivered a steady fire from the crest, at short range, which cleared the wall, to which we then rushed, flags waving and men shouting. Webb, Hall, Devereux, Mallon and Smith were among the men. Officers, on both sides, were using their pistols. The color sergeant of the 72d Pennsylvania went forward with his colors, the lance of which had been shot in two. The soldiers followed him with a rush. No one wanted to struggle now. Other colors were borne forward; the wall was gained and crossed, and the work of taking prisoners commenced. Hundreds, who threw down their arms and rushed toward us, were sent to the rear. Here and there, there was a struggle for flags; but the battle was ended in this part of the field. Lee's great assault had failed. Going back with some prisoners across the wall and over the crest, I saw General Meade, who came on the ground with his son, who was his aide. He stopped to speak to General Gibbon's aide (Hascall) and said, in his sharp way, "How is it going here?" or something that sounded like it. He was told that the attack was repulsed; when he repeated, "What, is the assault entirely repulsed?" When the aide again told him he thought it was, he said "Thank God," and made a motion to wave his hat, but he did not, but waved his right hand and hurrahed, while his son took off his hat and hurrahed like a good fellow. We men stood and stared, and then passed on, as the General gave orders in a quick, short way, which seemed to be about the placing of reinforcements. The dead men and horses were lying thick around; there was still some firing going on, and we were all—that is, all of us that were left—begrimmed with powder and dust, and many were bleeding; but it was a good thing to see our General so cool, so much at his ease, and speaking in such a soldierly way; and when he said "Thank God," many of us said "Amen." The reinforcements soon came up; but we had done without them, and in a little while all was quiet under the clump of trees; and the stone wall and the rail fence, and the heaps of dead, were once more at rest—the last, forever.

One thing struck me much. It was the intelligence of the men. For a good part of the time, and in the heaviest of the fight, the ranks were lost, and there was no organization. The officers were in our midst, everywhere; but still we kept together, and seemed to understand, without orders, what to do, and to feel that the quicker we fired the sooner the thing would be over. As to standing in line and blazing away regularly, why we never thought of it, and yet our fire was fearful, after the falling back from the wall was checked.

I have letter to get some account of the killed, wounded and missing of our division, to show that I have not written a boastful letter, but plain facts as they came to my knowledge. I have not got any accurate account, but think it nearly right to say, that we went into the fight with about 3,800 men in the second division, and came out of it with a loss of near 1,800, which was a greater loss, I am told, than was suffered by any other division of the army. We lost no gun, and the Provost Marshal credits us with 2,300 prisoners; and we buried, by count, within a few of 800 of the enemy dead in our front.

After the assault on our division was repulsed, there was another made on the left of us, a good way off, but it failed, and by six o'clock the fight was done everywhere. The great attack of the day, I think, was on us. If they fought more elsewhere, it was out of our sight and hearing.

The next day, some of us were talking the battle over, and our conclusion was, that the attack was splendidly made, after the cannonade caused on the 3d, and that, although it was at first successful, and some of our guns were in the enemy's hands, yet that we beat them off by having good pluck, some officers that knew their duty when we were shaky, and a fire of musketry that human beings could not stand.

When people who have been in battles attempt to describe them, as a whole, don't believe them. I have told you about as much as one man can ever see or hear.

GETTYSBURG.—WHAT MIGHT HAVE BEEN.

Just twenty-one years ago the relics of the Army of Northern Virginia had successfully crossed the Potomac, and the Gettysburg campaign was ended. The manœuvres during both campaign and battle have been so sharply and fully criticised, that it is almost hopeless to say anything on the subject without repeating what has already been well said, and even yet despite the vast amount of research bestowed—there are spots still veiled in impenetrable obscurity.

That the Confederates fought well at Gettysburg none who were there will deny. For three days they contended with the Army of the Potom

GOV. CLEVELAND presents the true issue: government only in the interest of the people. Mr. Blaine's political training and personal associates render it impossible that his administration if he should be elected would be honest and clean. The favorite of the Star route robbers and the land-grabbers could not if he would administer the government for the benefit of the whole people.

THREE Republican papers in Vermont have come out for Cleveland and Hendricks.

CARL SCHURZ will speak against Blaine and in favor of Cleveland in Brooklyn to-night. The independent Republicans are doing solid work for the Democratic candidates, and it begins to look like a Democratic sweep.

THE Republican campaign may be said to have opened. At least the leaders are begging for "soap."

SENATOR HAWLEY complains that we have no navy, and yet his party has spent the stupendous sum of THREE HUNDRED AND EIGHTY-FIVE MILLIONS of the people's money for naval purposes. Such a party "must go."

THE Republicans and Greenbackers of West Virginia have formed a coalition ticket—the very thing to bring the Democrats together and keep the State in the Democratic column.

IT is rather singular that Blaine, after helping the Stewart "bolt" to defeat Gen. Beaver, Cameron's candidate for Governor, only two years ago, should now expect Don to lead in the fight and open his purse to put Blaine into the White House. The conundrum is calculated to bother the average Republican.

EVERY German paper in Wisconsin is supporting Cleveland, Hendricks and Reform.

IF Senator Edmunds is an honest man he can't be warm for Blaine. Four years ago Edmunds wrote to a friend in Burlington, Vermont, these words:

"It is my deliberate opinion that Mr. Blaine acts as the attorney of Jay Gould. Whenever Mr. Thurman and I have settled upon legislation to bring the Pacific railroads to terms of equity with the government, up has jumped James G. Blaine, musket in hand, from behind the breastworks of Gould's lobby to fire in our backs."

No wonder that Edmunds is silent in regard to Blaine now.

THE twenty-five hundred men employed by the Bethlehem Iron Works are to suffer a reduction of twenty per cent. in wages—and expected to shout and vote for Republican rule all the same.

THE only living member of Mr. Lincoln's Cabinet, Hon. James Speed, Attorney-General, has declared for Cleveland, and will not support Blaine.

INFORMATION received at Washington from reliable sources indicates that Florida, to which the Republicans have been laying claim, is safe for the Democratic party.

Two of the Blaine electors in New York have withdrawn their names from the electoral ticket. Even the colored elector who was placed on the ticket to catch the colored vote, refuses to serve. The defection from Blaine is getting serious.

JOHN R. FELLOWS, at the great Democratic ratification meeting in New York, Wednesday evening, drew from his pocket a black-edged note, which he said was from the mother of Ireland's greatest son—it was full of expressions of admiration for the Democratic nominees.

EX-CONGRESSMAN LADD, of Maine, a Greenbacker, came out for Cleveland in a speech at Bangor on Saturday night.

THE Springfield Republican a decent independent journal, makes significant announcements in the following:

"We have known for many years a story which would prove very harrowing to the Blaine family, but which would have no proper bearing on Mr. Blaine's fitness for the presidency of the United States, and which has never before been alluded to in these columns. Whether it is true or not we have never sought to discover and never shall. General Garfield's opponents in 1880 acted with entire propriety in abstaining from making this side of his character an issue."

CLEVELAND NOTIFIED.

Memorable Day at Albany.—An Interesting and Impressive Scene.—Address of the Committee and the Governor's Reply.—Enthusiastic Demonstrations.

Governor Cleveland was formally notified of his nomination for the Presidency at Albany on Tuesday. The scene will long be remembered. Prominent men who have attended the presentation of the Presidential nomination to candidates said they had never seen one approximating it. The notification and National Committees were both present, and had a splendid escort by the Democratic Phalanx and bands of music from the Delavan House to the Governor's mansion. Many distinguished Democrats outside of the committees graced the occasion.

The presentation took place in the south parlor of the executive mansion. The room was simply but elegantly decorated with flowers, the mantel in the centre of the parlor being covered with red and white roses.

As the committee on notification filed in its members took their position in a semi-circle in the front of the room, but facing toward the back. The members of the national committee and the prominent invited guests formed a semi-circle in the back of the room, facing towards the front.

In the front rank of the notification committee was Senator Ransom, of North Carolina; Col. Barr, of Pittsburg; Congressman Stevenson, of Illinois; Gov. Waller, of Connecticut; Congressman Hooker, of Mississippi; Dr. George Wells, of Maryland, and Chairman Vilas, of Wisconsin.

On the opposite end of the room in the front line were Samuel J. Randall, Senator Gorman, Senator Jonas and ex-Congressman Ross. At the side of the mantel stood Gov. Cleveland's two sisters and his two nieces, with his law partner, Mr. Bissell.

When all was ready Gov. Cleveland advanced from the hall between the two committees, and with bowed head took his place, with his back towards the mantel. He was perceptibly pale, and it was plainly evident that it was only by the exertion of his will that he controlled his emotions.

Col. Vilas, chairman of the notification committee, then delivered a suitable address, and Mr. Bell, secretary of the committee, read the formal address prepared by the committee in New York and signed by all the members, inviting Gov. Cleveland's acceptance of the leadership to which he had been invited. The Governor responded as follows:

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen of the Committee: Your formal announcement does not, of course, convey to me the first information of the result of the Convention lately held by the Democracy of the nation; and yet when, as I listen to your message I see about me representatives from all parts of the land, of the great party which, claiming to be the party of the people, asks them to entrust to it the administration of their government; and when I consider, under the influence of the stern reality which the present surroundings create, that I have been chosen to represent the plans, purposes and the policy of the Democratic party, I am profoundly impressed by the solemnity of the occasion and by the responsibility of my position. Though I gratefully appreciate it, I do not at this moment congratulate myself upon the distinguished honor which has been conferred upon me, because my mind is full of an anxious desire to perform well the part which has been assigned to me. Nor do I at this moment forget that the rights and interests of more than fifty millions of my fellow citizens are involved in an effort to gain Democratic supremacy. This reflection presents to my mind the consideration which, more than all others, gives to the action of my party in convention assembled its most sober and serious aspect. The party and its representatives which ask to be entrusted at the hands of the people with the keeping of all that concerns their welfare and their safety should only ask it with the full appreciation of the sacredness of the trust, and with a firm resolve to administer it faithfully and well. I am a Democrat because I believe that this truth lies at the foundation of true Democracy. I have kept the faith, because I believe, if rightly and fairly administered and applied, Democratic doctrines and measures will insure the happiness, contentment and prosperity of the people. If in the contest upon which we now enter we steadfastly hold to the underlying principles of our party creed, and at all times keep in view the people's good, we shall be strong, because we are true to ourselves, and because the plain and independent voters of the land will seek by their suffrages to compass their release from party tyranny where there should be submission to the popular will, and their protection from party corruption where there should be devotion to the people's interests. These thoughts lend a consecration to our cause, and we go forth, not merely to gain a partisan advantage, but pledged to give to those who trust us the utmost benefits and honest administration of national affairs. No higher purpose or motive can stimulate us to supreme effort or urge us to continuous and earnest labor and effective party organization. Let us not fail in this, and we may confidently hope to reap the full reward of patriotic services well performed. I have thus called to mind some simple truths, and trite though they are, it seems to me we do well to dwell upon them at this time. I shall soon, I hope, signify in the usual formal manner my acceptance of the nomination which has been tendered to me. In the meantime I gladly greet you all as co-workers in a noble cause.

The Governor spoke extemporaneously and not without evidence of deep earnestness and feeling.

The congratulations that were showered upon him by the many distinguished leaders of the party at the close of the ceremonies were sincere and hearty. After some time spent in social interchanges, the doors of the dining-room were swung open and refreshments partaken of.

THE meeting of "Irish Patriots" in New York Monday evening week was gotten up and engineered by a nice set. There was E. O'Meagher Condon, Republican office-holder at Washington, the same who was mixed up in the "Me and O" business in 1882. There was Patrick Ford, whose assault upon Archbishop McClosky in his dynamite organ, the Irish World, has given him an unenviable notoriety. There was John Devoy, convicted of an atrocious libel to whom a pardon was refused by Governor Cleveland. There was Edward J. Rowe, a member of the old Tweed regime in Tammany Hall. The Patriot correctly pictures these malignants as banded together to make war upon England, and they are making it by exploding dynamite at railway stations and in crowded streets and hurling innocent lives into eternity. They expect to be protected in this barbarous warfare by Mr. Blaine if he should be elected president. If they do not expect this why do they support him on the ground that he will interfere against the punishment of the agents they employ in their murderous work? Meanwhile the cause of Irish freedom suffers irreparable injury at their hands. Their dynamite warfare is execrated by the civilized world. It is discountenanced and repudiated by every true Irish patriot. It remained for the debauched and dishonored Republican party to receive them to its dissolute embrace.

THE Boston Pilot, which opposed Cleveland's nomination, and now supports him, say Blaine's pretended friendship for foreign born citizens is sheer humbug.

THE change for the better which was noticed a week ago still continues the characteristic feature in Wall street.—New York Tribune.

It is noticeable that this change for the better began, immediately upon the nomination of Governor Cleveland.

THEY GNAW A FILE.

By direction of Mr. Blaine himself, it is said, the newspapers of his party have manifested a disposition to cease their attacks upon the Democratic nominee for president. It was found that the fabrication of new or the revamping of old and worn out falsehoods about his private life and personal character would not avail to hurt him or to help Blaine, when the community in which he had lived, in full light of observation and criticism, almost to man, irrespective of politics, testified to the purity of his character and the uprightness of his life.

Moreover, Mr. Blaine and his friends may have been impressed with the hints received from various quarters that an invitation from them to engage in miscellaneous stone throwing could be accepted by the Democratic press of the country without apprehension of damaging results to the Democratic candidates. Details of Blaine's adventures in "youth's hot blood" had been long reposing in editorial pigeon holes; and the Louisville Post declared that it is "in possession of facts in regard to Mr. Blaine's conduct while a schoolteacher in Kentucky, of the mob that threatened him and of his submission to their demand to avoid being lynched;" which it would print if the Republicans persisted in the Chinese mode of warfare with stinkpots.

Mr. Cleveland's public and official record is so free from reproach, and so far commends him to wise and upright men, that the more it is examined and discussed, the more it helps his election. In view of all these considerations the Republican press seems to have been ordered to open its batteries upon Hendricks, and they have belched forth quite furiously for the past few days upon the selected object of their assault. The obvious purpose is to drive the increasing number of Independents away from support of the Democracy, because the candidate for vice president was a pro slavery man before the war and a Democrat during that period.

Democrats are neither astonished nor alarmed at this demonstration of the opposition. Mr. Hendricks' and hundreds of the most illustrious men of his party have been subjected to this torrent of abuse time and again. It is a twice told tale; the country is familiar with it. Mr. Hendricks, like Seymour, has kept his place in the esteem of his countrymen despite it all. He was elected United States senator from Indiana during the war, governor of his state after it ended and vice president of the United States eight years ago, by a quarter million majority, with all of his record known to all men. He has been called "a nigger hater," "Copperhead" and "rebel," but in spite of it all, the red mouthed Chandlers and Wades, Mortons and Stevenses, in their graves, might be glad to have as universal respect paid their memories as is accorded to the living Hendricks. He was the friend of Lincoln when these radicals bullied and belied him, and he shared that eminent man's confidence when it was not extended to Grant. He has been a Democrat of Democrats, a leader of his party, the foremost man of his state for a generation; but no citizen's name before any concourse of people ever evoked such a spontaneous tribute of popular commendation as was paid him when the greetings to his name from fifteen thousand people tempest tossed the Chicago convention.

He was a Democrat before the war; so were Grant and Johnson, whom the Republicans made presidents; so were Meade and Sheridan, Reynolds and Hancock, Hooker and Rosecrans, Custer and Thomas, and thousands of others, of whom the heart of none beat more patriotically for his country, its integrity and its honor, than did Thomas A. Hendricks'; and his state sent more Democratic soldiers into the field than Republicans. He was a Democrat in the Senate, and he lived to see Trumbull and Fessenden, Greeley and Chase, Seward and Schurz, Curtin and Palmer, and the best Republicans in the country justify his course and join his party.

He was never a Know-Nothing like Blaine, nor protector of the kidnappers like Logan. No laws were ever enacted at his instigation like the Logan code of Illinois—the work of the Republican candidate for vice president, which prescribed that "every negro or mulatto, bond or free," who should come into the state and "remain ten days, with the evident intention of residing in the same," should "be deemed guilty of a high misdemeanor," punishable by a fine. If the negro or mulatto should be convicted, and the fine imposed "not paid forthwith," the justice of the peace was required to commit the offender to prison; "and said justice," the act further declared, "shall forthwith advertise said negro or mulatto by posting up notices thereof in at least three of the most public places in his district, which said notices shall be posted up for ten days, and on the day and at the time and place mentioned in said advertisement the said justice shall at public auction proceed to sell said negro or mulatto to any person or persons who will pay said fine and costs."

If the campaign is to turn upon the private character and political record of the nominee for vice president, we welcome the issue. Mr. Hendricks may be stripped to the buff; there will be found no tattoo marks there.—Lancaster Intelligencer.

THE BUFFALO LIE.

The following which explicitly explains itself, is of vital interest just now, as it completely demolishes the scandalous lies which have been paraded for several days by the Blaine organs with shameless indecency. It is an answer to a private letter sent from New York.

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 27.—DEAR SIR: Yours of 24th inst. received, and we thank you for your manifested interest in Gov. Cleveland's behalf. With reference to the reports about Governor Cleveland, you can say, and you will tell the positive truth every time you say it, that the story over "Rev." Ball's signature, and the other reports about Cleveland's immorality, are absolutely false. The "Rev." Ball was an ardent supporter of Cleveland during the gubernatorial campaign, and was paid for his work. We understand, however, that he was disappointed about some position, hence the "flop" and dirty work unbecoming any man, whether he wears the cloth or not. "Rev." Ball's article has no weight in this place, where he is known. The story as published is false, absolutely so, and will be met in due time. Cleveland will carry Buffalo by 5,000 to 8,000 majority, and New York state by at least 25,000, and in all probability considerably more. He is a man whose social or public life has never been marred to prevent his associating with and having the confidence of the best people in Buffalo. And if elected, which he surely will be, the United States will have an upright, honest, fearless president. Yours truly,
C. W. McCUNE,
President Courier Company.

THE uselessness of a large and expensive standing army becomes more apparent every day. The well equipped and admirably disciplined force now encamped on the famous battle field of Gettysburg is a guarantee that Pennsylvania is safe from invasion and secure against insurrection. This state will want no standing army in future.—Patriot.

THE New York Times makes nowdisclosures in regard to the Mulligan letters, and proves that Blaine added downright falsification to his other crimes.

OTHER COUNTIES.

A tailless colt, foaled in York county, will be exhibited at the Grangers' Pic-Nic.

Thomas Gowan, whilst drunk, fell through a N. C. R. R. bridge near New Cumberland and broke his neck.

On Saturday night week, in Springgarden township, York county, Mrs. Adam J. Miller was shot through the body while holding her sick infant upon her lap. Suspicion points to her husband's brother, Pius Miller, who has long been considered a monomaniac on the subject of witchcraft and had accused her of bewitching him. He has disappeared and $100 reward is offered for his arrest. The woman is better and may recover.

Cleveland Gossard is the name given a young son and the 23d child of David Gossard, of the Clear Spring district, Washington county, Md. Of these children 14 were boys and 9 girls, and 21 are now living. Mr. Gossard is about 55 years old and his wife ten years younger.

On Saturday morning week the stone bank barn of Wm. A. Lindsay, in Cumberland county, was consumed by fire from supposed spontaneous combustion. The loss is quite heavy, but insured.

Hog cholera is raging in and around Petersville, Frederick county. The disease started about a month ago in the pens of Outerbridge Horsey, and since that time has developed into a plague. Snively Flook has lost 26, several of which would have weighed 200 pounds; George Waghn, 12; Samuel Clagett, 9; Ister Edmunds, 33; Ezra Williard, 6; Dr. Hilleary, Allen Waghn, Charles Engle and Josiah Gross also lost a large number.

David Hoover, of Ringold district, Washington county, thrashed 900 bushels of wheat from 18 acres of land, or exactly 50 bushels to the acre.

WEATHER SIGNALS.—The trains on the Get. & Har. Railroad now display weather signals, changed every morning by reports from the Chief Signal Officer at Washington. Two sets of signals, red and blue, are used, representing the sun, a crescent and a star. The red color refers to the temperature, and the blue to the state of the weather.

When a red Sun is displayed higher temperature is indicated, that is the weather promises to be warmer at any certain hour than on the previous day at the same hour. When a red Crescent is displayed lower temperature is probable, that is the weather will be cooler or colder than at a certain hour of the previous day. A red Star displayed will indicate a stationary temperature, that is a degree of heat or cold varying but slightly from that of the day previous.

A blue Sun displayed will indicate general rain or snow; a blue Crescent will foretell clear or clearing weather; a blue Star local rain or snow, local rains or snows being such as are likely to occur at one or more points in the Cumberland Valley, but will not probably be general; local rains are not usually of long duration.

It must be remembered that these predictions indicate only the probabilities, and that no one can fortell the character of the weather for twenty-four hours with absolute certainty. It is believed, however, from past experience, that in a great majority of cases the predictions will be verified.

AUTOMATIC WHISTLE.—The bell rope has been taken off the passenger trains running on the Frederick Division. Instead of the gong on the locomotive used by the conductor to signal to the engineer, an automatic whistle is substituted. Under each car a rubber air tube is fastened similar to the one used in operating air brakes, which will form a continuous tube from the rear car to the cab. In each car there is a separate rope connecting with the tube, and a slight touch from the conductor will suffice to give the whistle near the engine a shrill blast. Besides that a similar whistle is blown in the car when the signal is given, so that the conductor may know that the engineer's whistle was sounded. The new arrangement is said to possess many advantages over the old system.—Hanover Citizen.

SERGEANT JOSEPH ELLISON, of the Greely party, who died after being rescued, had friends living in Pottsville, who will have his body taken to that place and buried. His brother, Alois Ellison, received his will and personal property when he started with Greely.

LIEUTENANT LOCKWOOD, of the Greely exploration party, was a pupil of Schwartz's Academy at Bethlehem, in 1864, at which time he was but eleven years old. Among his schoolmates were Warren Buckalew, son of ex-Senator Buckalew, and Harry Bigler, a son of the ex-Governor.

HON. HORACE WHITE, of the New York Post, says Mr. Blaine cannot make a point on the tariff, because the Democrats in their platform declare in favor of duties high enough to cover the difference between wages in this country and Europe, and the Republicans dare not advocate higher duties than these.

CHEAP plumes and feathers are to be sent from Republican headquarters at Washington to rustle Blaineites with which to bedeck themselves and shout for the Plumed Knight. It would be well to send at the same time an explanation of why a man who never smelt the smoke of battle, and who sent a substitute to the war, should be called "the Plumed Knight."

THE Buffalo Express, the Republican organ of the city in which Grover Cleveland has resided since his boyhood, says it does not believe the charges and reiterates its confidence in the moral and political integrity of the Democratic candidate.

THE Connelsville Courier quotes a stalwart as saying that "Blaine is a corrupt, disreputable demagogue, who will stoop to anything to attain a given end."

THE Greensburg Argus says a party that has produced two panics in the short space of eleven years cannot count very confidently on success when it goes before the people during the approaching Presidential campaign.

THE great corporation lords of the Union are Jay Gould, Cyrus W. Field and Russell Sage, and they are all for Blaine.

AMONG the delegates to the Independent Republican conference in New York were such distinguished Republicans as Carl Schurz, Benjamin H. Bristow, George William Curtis, Theodore Lyman, Charles R. Codman, Francis C. Barlow, Moses Williams, Winslow Warren, Mansfield Strong, and others. The meeting was called to order by Mr. Curtis and Mr. Charles R. Codman was called to the chair. The proceedings were dignified and throughout the meeting there was manifested a tone of energy and determination that implies neither compromise or cessation.

DURING his twenty years in Congress James G. Blaine voted to give the government lands to railroads and other corporations, without flinching, but in his recent letter of acceptance he advises that the lands be given to the people, who are the real owners of the soil. Why did not this great man see that point while he was in Congress, and in the Speaker's seat?

To urge workingmen to vote for Blaine and the present tariff whilst said tariff is reducing the wages of workingmen day after day, must be an awkward job, but the Republican paper does it.

LITTLESTOWN ITEMS.—Our town is noted for its fine horses.

We hear complaints of an unusual amount of rats in this community.

Charles Stoner, near M. E. Bollinger's mill, Conowago township, has built a large bank barn.

Jere. Unger, of Union township, put up a new summer kitchen.

David Schwartz, of Mountjoy, township, has erected a new bank barn, and David Study, of the same township, has put an addition to his barn.

John Geesey, of Mountpleasant township, has put up a new back-building and weatherboarded the main building.

George H. Eby, of Mountjoy township, whose mill race was washed out by the flood; has repaired it.

The Sunday School of Mountpleasant Evangelical Church, in Conowago township, will hold its celebration Aug. 9th. The Silver Run Cornet Band has been engaged to furnish the music.

Greenville Sunday School, near Kingsdale, will hold its annual celebration Aug. 16th, and music furnished by the Silver Run Band.

Geo. H. Nau, of Emmitsburg, formerly of Littlestown, has disposed of part of his marble yard to George Hoke, and left for Galesburg, Ill., with the view of making that his home for the future.

Samuel H. Robert, hardware merchant, has sold his bay horse, "Harry," to John F. Kunkle, of Frederick, Md., for $350.

Our agents who represent the phosphate and machine interests, report a wanton destruction of their posters throughout the country by mutilating, disfiguring and tearing them down. This supposed innocent yet malicious mischief subjects the guilty to fine and imprisonment.

Our enterprising young townsman, S. Oliver Feeser, who started a broom factory last spring, is doing a flourishing business. He turns out an average of 90 brooms a day, giving constant employment to six men, who are unable to meet the demand.

Prof. W. E. Krebs purchased two building lots of Daniel Sell, on Hanover street, for $715, upon which he intends immediately to erect a dwelling house.

Miss Salli Steffy has purchased from L. Brandt the one-story frame store building on Baltimore street for $1,000.

Isaac Bereaw has erected a new summer kitchen, James Plankert a new spring and wash-house, and Joseph Miller has painted his dwelling, all residents of Mountjoy township.

Levi Welkert, near Round-Top, has put a new roof on and painted his dwelling house.

Jas. A. Lefevre, of Union township, is erecting a new wagon shed.

There is an insect destroying the clover seed by eating out the blossom.

Mrs. Elizabeth, widow of Moses Hartman, disposed of 40 shares of Littlestown Bank stock at private sale for $32.50 per share, par value $25.00.

The rain last week interfered greatly in gathering the oats crop.

St. Luke's and Redeemer's Reformed Sunday Schools pic-nic had a fine day and large attendance.

John Byers has purchased a lot on Lombard street from Levi Mous for $275, upon which he will erect new buildings. EAGLE-EYE.

Aug. 4, 1884.

FAIRFIELD, Aug. 4th.—Our town was full of visitors last week, and among others I notice Mrs. Miller, of Virginia, well known to most of us as Miss Jennie Myers, owner of the "Virginia Mills."

A few days ago as Daniel Mickley, Jr., was cutting wood the axe glanced and struck him on the left foot, cutting an ugly gash across the instep, which will disable him for some time.

Last Tuesday Mr. and Mrs. Michael Kugler started on a trip west, expecting to be absent several months, visiting their son, John J. Kugler, in Kansas, and other friends.

Mr. Mc. Culbertson lost a valuable horse last week, from injuries received by getting fast in the stable.

Among the patents issued in July I notice one to our townsman, D. B. Rock, tinner, for an eave trough-hanger, which I think, is a good invention, securely fastening the trough in any desired position, on any kind of cornice, or on the eave with no cornice. This is the second patent received by Mr. Rock during the year, and we hope he may be fortunate in putting them on the market, so that the people may have the benefit of his invention. S.

THE only surviving member of Lincoln's cabinet publicly declares that he cannot vote for Blaine.

If Abraham Lincoln were alive he would join the revolt.

NATIONAL GUARD.

PARADES AND REVIEWS.—MAGNIFICENT MILITARY DISPLAYS.

CROWDS OF PEOPLE.

The National Guard Encampment, now at its height, is the most memorable occasion Gettysburg has seen since the battle. Thousands of sight-seers and soldiers throng the side walks and innumerable teams crowd the streets day and night. Trains at all hours over the Gettysburg and Harrisburg railroad brought a crowd the extent of which has never been approached on any of the big day's of our much-visited town's past history.

The plain made famous by the grand charge of Pickett's veterans twenty-one years ago is to-day dotted all over with the white tents which shelter our Commonwealth's defenders, who are being taught the arts of war. It is a veritable canvas city, and said by those well posted to be one of the handsomest camps ever seen in this country. Division headquarters are on the Seminary ridge and overlook the entire camp, which covers nearly 300 acres of land. Headquarters of the First Brigade are between the avenue and Emmitsburg road, near where Gen. Hancock was wounded; Second Brigade west of Emmitsburg road; Third Brigade on Seminary ridge a short distance north of Division headquarters. All the fences have been removed, the grounds cleared and two main avenues, named after Generals Reynolds and Meade, laid out. Water from the town reservoir has been taken through pipes to all parts of the camp, and a Thompson-Houston Electric Light machine on a car, belonging to the Cumberland Valley Railroad, lights the camp at night. Telegraphic communication with the outside world has been established by a line from headquarters to the Western Union office in town. The Commissary is located on the railroad and the Sutler has two large stands.

The vast amount of work necessary in getting the camp ready was done in the few days allotted by details of men from all the regiments. On Tuesday Col. Charles S. Greene, Division Quartermaster, and Col. S. S. Hartranft, Commissary, arrived. The same night a train of ten freight cars brought tents and part of the stores. Next morning camping parties commenced coming, and soon the officers had scores of teams handling out the camp paraphernalia. For several days the scene was one of bustle and activity—mounted officers galloping to and fro; wagons loaded to the utmost capacity of the teams hurrying to different points with tents, floors, &c., men unloading from cars lining the track on both sides with all sorts of packages, others taking artillery and horses off the cars, putting up tents, arranging cook houses, building sutler shanties, and the thousand and one other kinds of work incident to such an occasion; everybody doing something and everybody in haste.

At midnight Wednesday Major General J. F. Hartranft and family, with several members of his staff, arrived on a special train, camping parties to the number of several hundred coming in at the same time. Thursday morning Co. G, Eighth regiment, of Carlisle, reported and were assigned to guard duty. Co. A., same regiment, arrived via Hanover and were also detailed for guard duty. Early Friday morning a number of special trains brought regiments of second and third brigades.

Col. Pettit, Provost Marshal, established a patrol for town with quarters in the Public School yard. The first company, Capt. Strine's, of York, went on duty Friday evening. The streets are patrolled constantly and efficient service done in preserving order in town. Soldiers in town without passes are arrested and taken to the guard house. Sentries guard all parts of the camp and the avenues to town.

From Friday to Sunday hardly an hour elapsed without the arrival of a train either of troops or freight, as high as ten locomotives being on the tracks about the station at one time. Nearly two hundred cars were handled each of the three days, all without accident or hurt to anyone of the thousands of persons moved.

Camp formally opened on Saturday morning, though all the troops did not report for duty until Sunday, the morning reports of that day showing nearly eight thousand men in camp.

FROM THE EAST END.—The east end was favored with plenty of rain during this week. It was needed. The corn was suffering, and the ground was too dry to plow. Now it is otherwise. The early corn is "made," and the late corn is making up for its past tardiness.

Early apples are abundant and of good quality. The fall and winter apple crop will be larger than has been the case for many years.

The wheat threshers are at work in all directions. The yield of wheat is excellent; both as regards quantity and quality. But the price it brings is discouraging to the farmers. If the price of flour corresponded with that of wheat the poor man would not only have good but also cheap bread to eat for a year to come.

A warehouse-man read me a letter, received from the city party to whom he ships grain, in which it was stated that not for many years past was the quality of wheat so high as that now coming into market.

Fifty-eight years ago Rev. J. H. Wessling, pastor of the Reformed congregation at Hanover, died and was buried in the Reformed graveyard then adjoining the church. Last week his remains were disinterred and removed to Frederick City, Md. The cause for this procedure are not transpired. Old graveyards are not to be neglected, especially when burial therein is no longer permitted.

The wife of Rev. D. Eberly, Professor in Lebanon Valley College at Annville, the only child of Wm. Bittinger, Esq., of Abbottstown, died of consumption at her parental home on Tuesday, July 29th, in the 37th year of her age. She was an estimable lady, and the stricken husband and parents have the sympathy of all.

The school board of East Berlin will pay from $30 to $40 monthly to teachers. The term is to be six months; the tax 14 mills. Prof. Hildebrand's Normal School opened last Monday. The attendance is unusually large.

From present appearance there will be but little clover seed harvested in the east and this season. The clover midge, that destroyed the blossoms of the first crop, is now destructively at work on the second. It is probable that this pest, at present so abundant in our clover fields, will give the farmers much trouble and loss until its parasite, never long absent, comes and sweeps it away.

The potato bug, so scarce last Spring that it was supposed it had forsaken us for pastures new, has unexpectedly reappeared in huge numbers and is doing serious injury to the late crop.

ARENDTSVILLE ITEMS.—Farmers busy at putting away their oats crop and plowing for seeding.

Mr. Michael Omer, Jr., of Menallen township, was kicked in the stomach by a colt last week and it was thought seriously injured, but he is now out of danger.

A blacksnake 6 feet long and a rattlesnake with 11 rattles were killed by Anderson Raffensperger last week whilst out blackberrying.

There was hauled through town the largest stick of sawed timber ever seen here. It came from Hon. Wm. A. Martin's saw mill, Menallen township, and was furnished by him for the new round-house of the G. & H. R. R. at Gettysburg. Its dimensions were 61 feet long; 7 by 9 inches.

Mr. John Fleck, near here, is having his barn painted. Others in the neighborhood need it.

Moses Raffensperger had a stone hauling frolic Friday week, in which 85 persons participated. There were 10 teams. The following persons furnished them: Peter Taylor, John F. Hartman, Peter Schlosser, Noah W. Hartman, Daniel Gilbert, David Bankert, David Tool, Adam Lupp, John Gallagher and Henry Raffensperger. He returns thanks for the very generous help given in clearing off and hauling the stone.

Mrs. Thomas McElwee, near this place, accidentally fell down stairs one night last week and had two ribs fractured.

Miss Katie Dull has a geranium stalk with 43 flowers. G.

NEW OXFORD RECORDINGS.—As so much is said about cholera, and fearing something of the kind, and the warm weather approaching, the cellar cannot be neglected with safety. If there should be rotten potatoes or other vegetables, have them taken out, remove all mouldy pickle-jars, barrels and every unclean thing, and air and sweeten the underground department that has so much to do with the health of the family. It is much better to do this before the evil crops out in bad fevers and other disorders that result from impure air. After people have been housed up all winter in close rooms they are usually in good condition to become a prey to disease, and too much care cannot be taken to keep the surroundings of a dwelling sweet and pure.

Died, near this place, Claude, son of John G. Williams, July 30th, aged 6 years His remains were consigned to the tomb at Jefferson, York county, on Friday, August 1st. Rev. Wolff officiated at the house, before leaving. Mr. Williams is foreman on the H. J., H. & G. R. R.

The health of the community is good at present, and all the Democrats are pleased with Cleveland and Hendricks, but the Republicans are scared.

The apple crop will not be as large in this section as was anticipated. So many drop from the trees, and so with all fruit. What is the cause?

Since the farmers are through with their grain, many are threshing it out of the field. The oats, too, has turned out well; more than an average yield. New wheat is being brought by dealers in large quantities—some shipped to Baltimore.

Since the busy season is over, tramps are again making their appearance in this section. They should be made work or driven off. They are nothing but a lazy set of vagabonds.

Since the farmers are through with their grain and know the rich yield, they are happy, and busy too, some plowing, threshing and attending to out work generally.

Business is a little more lively here than it was the past few weeks. O.

FROM BUTLER.—The U. B. campmeeting in Smith's grove, near this place, will commence on the 13th of August and continue one week.

Jacob Hewitt has painted his house, near Sunny Side station.

Martin Boyer made and sold this season 625 dozens of rakes.

The Sunday Schools of this place intend to picnic at Pine Grove some time in August.

The supervisors of Butler are now engaged in repairing bridges and roads so badly damaged by the recent floods.

Huckleberries are selling in Bendersville at 5 cents a quart; at Arendtsville 8 cents.

Corn looks promising in this section. S.

FROM MUMMASBURG.—Corn is looking well.

A potato grown on the premises of Henry Deardorff, near this place, weighs 12 lbs. Who can beat it?

On Friday week, J. D. Fread, whilst assisting J. F. Hartman in removing some wagon tire, got one of his fingers painfully injured.

Have had a running sore on my leg for eight years; my doctors told me I would have to have the bone scraped or leg amputated. I used, instead, three bottles of Electric Bitters and seven boxes Bucklen's Arnica Salve, and my leg is now sound and well."

Electric Bitters are sold at fifty cents a bottle, and Bucklen's Arnica Salve at twenty-five cents per box by J. M. Huber. 5

THE late residence of Tom Thumb was sold lately for $4,500. Its original cost was, it is said, $60,000, but the erection of a new jail in its vicinity depreciates its value.

A PAINFUL SKIN DISEASE.—Mount Joy, Pa., July 25, 1883.—Gentlemen: For the benefit of the afflicted I desire to relate my case. All this spring and early summer I suffered from a painful and exceedingly annoying skin disease, breaking out in watery eruptions around my neck and on other parts of my body, and itching almost to intolerance when I perspired. Neither could I rest at night. When the circular of your Aromuma were sent around I at once bought a bottle, and commenced using it. And now, after using about three bottles, I am entirely cured of my annoying disease, and I feel healthier and stronger than for several years past.

"ROUND-TOP."

Scenature of the Devil's Den. The ieth New York cut down like the rded Wheat on the Field of Gettys- .

The sun was low;
a blushing rays were cast as low
en that crimsoned field—
That awful second day,
e hors de combat there thousands helpless lay,
heir arms no more to wield.

Up the rough glen ly charged the Southern men,
n for the heavy guns.
ke a great swarm of bees,
behind the rough bowlders, brush and trees,
ad, eager the column comes.

Up on the rocky knoll,
p through that gullied hole,
ut from the Devil's Den,
On through the fire and smoke, those heavy guns, and the line broke nd backward reeled the men.

Forced from their guns, nack the Federal line comes;
ll but the maimed and slain.
Up on to Round-Top Hill, ough that valley of death, came shouting still last charging human train.

Ward was driven,
ir force rent and riven,
attered, broken and torn.
he Fourth New York battery en and turned almost instantly,
Belching thunder and storm.

Suddenly a form
Riding through leaden storm,
dney cried from the hill,
"Colonel, your men!" "Are in line!"
"For God's sake retrieve the lost ground and time!"
"General, I surely will!"

n the evening shades of the wooded glen, ve Egan led forth his eight hundred men, ward at double-quick, shouting they came,
ough the field of waving and ripened grain,
a withering fire of artillery came,
pting a harvest of both men and grain.

through the strip of wood upward they go, to the heated and wild maddened foe,
r to the wood by a wall of stone fence,
ot gulling fire had checked their advance,
n Egan's sword like a halo swung round, er and steel cleared the wall with a bound.

llow the Colonel!" cried the regiment.
an instant over the wall they went.
a whirlwind swiftly they onward bore, er the rough ground and human gore,
the foot of those stones, ah, sad to tell,
hundred and seventy brave men fell.

l up on the brow the regiment runs,
d now in sight of their captured guns,
an shouted, "Give them the steel, my boys!"
d bayonets clashed with a ringing noise.
he Fortieth New York, not much flinched;
onets locked bayonets, and man to man clinched.

w forward they dashed and broke the bound spell,
ndered and stormed at with grape shot and shell,
th cheers and wild shouts and furious yell, aight on for the guns, most gallant and well,
rling the foe from the field earned so well, kward and down into that "Demon Dell."

th a whoop and a rush down in the den, nt charging brave Egan's heroic men.
nto the rocks, trees and brush were flinged with flame,
d now like a storm of missiles came,
they volleyed and stabbed, pressed through the glen hich that day of strife named the "Devil's Den."

rough that rocky ravine Plum Creek still flows, d over those huge rocks the scrub pine grows, t bright silvery stream is murmuring still r the martyrs that fell upon the hill.
e scarred and marred rocks their requiem tell.
ered to the men who at their feet fell.

THE AMERICAN FLAG.

It is remarkable what interest and importance are attached to the American flag; how men rally under it; how it is borne, in triumphant marches, at the head of every procession; how it is hailed with delight, as it floats from our flag staff and the domes of our public buildings. We almost worship our stars and stripes, because they are the symbols of our liberty, the evidence of our strength, the honored pride of the American people on land and on sea. This flag originated in a resolution of Congress adopted on the 13th of June 1777, which is in the following words: "That the flag of the thirteen United States be thirteen stripes alternately red and white; that the Union be thirteen stars, white in a blue field, representing a new constellation." After the war of the Revolution, as new States were organized and admitted, another star was added, for each, on this field of blue, until now, after the lapse of a century, the flag of our Union can boast of no less than thirty-eight stars, each one representing a distinct state, and forming, in the whole, a shield of strength that defies the world and is a terror to enemies from without as well as enemies from within.

Forever float that standard sheet;
Where breathes the foe but falls before us;
With freedom's soil beneath our feet,
And freedom's banner waving o'er us."

It was an unwritten law between the Rebels" and Yankees, at the loft of Petersburg, the winter and spring of 865, to meet between the picket lines nd indulge in commercial transactions nd to trade papers. This was confined o men in the line. One day General Roger A. Pryor rode out to the Yankee o trade papers. It happened that the Yankee had been a prisoner and had often seen General Pryor, and easily recognized him. Recalling that the unwritten law did not include general officers, and seeing big game, the Yankee cocked his gun and aimed at Pryor's heart, telling him to get down and walk into camp. The plucky Southerner fairly frothed at the mouth, but obeyed orders.

A Classical Senator.—A Washington telegram of Saturday 5th ult. says: Senator Vance drew a sigh that seemed as though it might shatter his whole bulk when he was asked the other day if he wanted Congress to adjourn. "I long for adjournment," he said. "I want to go fishing. The campaign is about to burst over my State and the country, but I'll go fishing once if I die for it. I want to go back to old North Carolina. I want to wake up in the morning and see the pine trees and I want to smell them when I go to bed, as their perfume floats into the window and makes me dream that I am a child again. Yes, verily, I want to go out into our fields once more and see a nigger plowing with a one-eyed mule, with a coffee sack for a plow-line."

Red Men Too Civilized to Suit the Border.—Three young Chiricahua Indians, graduates of the Government School at Carlisle, Pa., have recently arrived at San Carlos. They are sent there by General Armstrong to show what sort of "Injin" civilization can turn out. They are dressed in the very latest styles of Eastern clothes, wear high collars, Derby hats, and carry canes, and, as was intended, we suppose, make a profound sensation among their barbarous brethren. That the training they have received has civilized them, and that their reasoning powers have been fully developed, is evidenced by the fact that they demand that their names be placed on the government pay-roll and draw their salaries without doing any work. Is it possible for any man—white, black or red—to show greater intelligence than this?—Arizona Chronicle.

Blaine is accepted as a satisfactory man by about two-thirds of his party, including all the steady old voters, who are faithful to the theory that they ought to support "the devil incarnate" if he gets the regular nomination; but he is opposed by a large, thoughtful, intelligent and energetic section of those who have faith in what have been always supposed to be Republican principles and want their votes to be consistent with that faith. And why do they oppose Blaine? He can and does and will shout as loud as any of them for any of the Republican principles or all of them together. But, as the New York Herald says, they believe that he is a rogue. They hold that his history exhibits him as contaminated with relation to many dishonest operations, and they believe that his shouting of Republican principles is only the ordinary rogue's ruse to draw attention away from the little games or great games by which he hopes to profit. They believe he is at once the tool and ally of men to whom politics is only a protext for gigantic public robbery.

In the opposition John Kelly and his lieutenants made to Cleveland's nomination at Chicago it was instanced that the workingmen of New York state would bolt the ticket if Cleveland were on it because he vetoed the five cent passenger railway bill. The opposition was groundless and the facts were distorted. Governor Cleveland vetoed the bill on the ground that it was unconstitutional. He also recognized the fact that the passage of the bill would benefit laborers to a very slight extent, as the fare on this road was already five cents during certain hours of the day. These hours included the time at which laborers used the road in going to and from their work. During the evening and night the fare was six cents, but at this time the road was used mainly by pleasure seekers and individuals who could pay the additional cent. It is therefore easily observed that in voting the bill Governor Cleveland not only considered that it was not constitutional but saw also that it would not be beneficial to the workingmen. The threatened labor bolt was but a scare supposed to be effectual in the convention by men whose antagonism to Cleveland was purely personal.—Patriot.

In all his votoes Governor Cleveland was honestly governed by the limitations of the constitution of his state.

Many members of Tammany are disgusted with John Kelly. Some of the leaders are warm in advocacy of Cleveland and Hendricks, and several district organizations of Tammany have not waited for the general society, but have endorsed the nominations. Kelly is even threatened with loss of position and power, and unless he comes up squarely and supports the ticket, and that speedily, he will be displaced or the Society will be disorganized. Mr. Kelly cannot control the organization against the Democratic party. He may have been powerful in that line heretofore, but he cannot do it this year. There is no reason for objection to Cleveland on the part of Tammany, and Mr. Kelly cannot control.—Westminster Advocate.

The New York Sun thinks that stories against the personal character of candidates, first started in a political campaign, are very ineffective weapons of assault, as they are charged to political malevolence and their truth or falsity is not demonstrated under the circumstances. Experience shows that this is true. Gov. Cleveland will probably not dignify with a denial any tales about his life, which are sure not to be generally credited, and the denial of which would not be believed by those who want to believe the stories.—Lancaster Intelligencer.

"Dear me," gasped Mrs. Knowal, "there is a terrible item in the paper. My, how the poor man must have suffered!"

"What is it?" asked her husband, coming to her side.

"Why, one of these poor walking match fellows swallowed a sponge."

"What? Let me see!"

After carefully reading the article, Mr. K. threw the paper down, growling:

"You women ain't got a grain of sense; it don't say he swallowed a sponge."

"I know it don't in those exact words," answered his wife; then brightly continued, "but how could he throw up the sponge if he didn't swallow it?"

Clausa writes to inquire: "What has given woman the reputation of being such a great talker." We do not know, Clausa, unless it is her mouth.—Yonkers Statesman.

A New York seed dealer has a box containing 54 pounds of cauliflower seed. He values it at $2,700, and as he could not replace it in case of loss keeps it in the vaults of a safe deposit company.

If there is anything that is calculated to make a woman dwell on suicide it is after she has spent twenty minutes fixing her bangs, ten minutes powdering her chin, and five minutes putting the room to rights, to rush to the door in answer to the bell and to be met with inquiry, "Buy some nice family soap, madam? Eleven cakes for fifteen cents."

The newest thing in drinks on this side the Mexican border is pulque, which on the other side is the favorite beverage. It is made of aloes, and is four times as potent as "Jersey lightning."

Lawsuits are decided in Siam by placing the litigants under cold water. The one remaining the longest is declared the victor. In this country they are kept in hot water.

Judah P. Benjamin left half a million to his family. He was British born, and it is believed he never was naturalized, yet he was a Union Senator and a Confederate minister and died as a French subject.

The old inn in Pipersville, Bucks county, built in 1730, has been destroyed. It sheltered Franklin, Wayne, Mifflin, Robert Morris, Dr. Bush, Bishop White, and other famous men. Timothy Matlack cut his name on the piazza railing. Joseph Bonaparte and his entire suite stayed at the inn for two weeks.

A Mississippi man whose time hung heavy on his hands counted the number of grains in a bushel. He found 72,180 of corn, 132,000 of wheat, 109,000 of peas and 161,166 of cotton seed.

The young man from the country and his girl were drifting slowly into an ice-cream saloon when the following met his eye: "Vanilla, chocolate, lemon and strawberry ice-cream $1.50 per Gal.", He turned and fled.—Rochester Post-Express.

DEERING
TWINE BINDER
LIGHT DRAFT, LIGHT WEIGHT AND SIMPLICITY.
By the new knotting device 21 pieces are taken out of the Binder, and 6 pieces are substituted for them. Practically the number of parts is even smaller, as three pair are so put together as really to be two pieces out of six.
Fourteen Deering Binders were sold in Gettysburg last season, giving the highest satisfaction, as testimonials in the hands of the agent will show. The following are specimens:
Highland Tp., Sept. 1, 1883.
To William Deering: I bought one of your five-foot Twine Binders from you next, John A. Livers, and cut my whole crop without a stop. My fields were hilly and we cut in places so steep that I never attempt to go with a wagon. It took two men or their weight to keep the Binder from upsetting, but it cut and bound the grain perfectly. The truck is just the thing. I could not use the Binder on my farm without it. Farmers, don't be afraid to try them. They are all right.
JOSEPH HERSHEY.
Huntertown, Sept. 12, 1883.
I could not wish my Deering Binder to do better work than it did this summer, and think it would be hard to satisfy the man that would find fault with the Deering.
JESSE TAUGHINBAUGH.
Mount Pleasant Tp., Sept. 1, 1883.
We cut all kinds of grain to test the Deering Binder, five seven foot four, badly lodged wheat and short wheat, and I was surprised to find that I could cut lodged grain better than with the self-raike.
N. M. TAWNEY.
Straban Tp., Sept. 12, 1883.
I am well pleased with my Deering Binder, and can recommend them to farmers wanting a first-rate machine.
JOHN BENDER.
Rock Creek, Sept. 1, 1883.
We cut 71 acres with the Deering Binder, and finished up by cutting a field of rye that another Binder failed to cut. The Binder worked well done, and any farmer that finds fault with the Deering don't want a binder.
HARRY SCHRIVER.
